COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

Mrs. Shirley Olson has been hired to replace Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler as part-time help in the office. Mrs. Wheeler resigned her position to accept full-time employment elsewhere.

I was in Orono Tuesday to attend a seminar for managers and road maintenance personnel. This was one of a series of four being held in different locations within the State.

Representatives of the board of assessors were in Rumford Wednesday attending the annual School for Assessors and Tax Collectors sponsored by the Bureau of Taxation.

The road crew has started their spring work by sweeping sidewalks. It will still be some time before they can commence road maintenance. There will be more ruts than usual necessary on the sides of the roads due to the fact that the ground was not frozen at the start of snow plowing, then the last storm came during a thaw causing the equipment to dig into the sod.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Correa. —

It is now the end of March and the brooks should be speaking a new language. But they are buried beneath the ice and snow.

I've had two outings on snowshoes this week yet yearn for the milder days and the feel of spring. As I traveled I watched hopefully for spring's big signs as well as the little ones.

I think most of us are winter-weary and because the days have stretched we are taunted with the fact that it is no longer winter and yet not really spring.

I'm sure I heard the hills complain of the rough cold winter and that they will sigh with relief when it breaks up.

Never before until this week had I visited the ledges in winter. How different it seemed, yet the view was lovely.

The air was cold, still with the tangy crispness of winter as the breeze swept up from the pond.

Momentarily the tops of the far mountains were mush-roomed in clouds, but the sun in the valley I hoped was melting the snow so we could soon see the grass again.

I lingered a few moments looking toward Sanborn River. I thought how soon it will swirl and eddy, maybe whipping itself into frothy bubbles as it plunges over rocks and floating branches in the high waters of spring.

The trail I now followed rose gradually and was among the evergreens. The shafts of light struck through these tall trees and cast bright rays on the snow.

Then I became aware of the forest sounds: the rustling of the tree tops, swaying in the wind, the calls of the crows making a gravelly noise deep in their throats and always, always the call of the chickadee.

"He sings his song of gratitude
And frolics to the old elm tree;
All the while filling the air
With his sprite, sparkling
"Dee-dee-dee"

J. M. Knipfer

Nearing the top of the hill I followed an old wood road where I seemed to be moving down a long room with white walls on either side. For some time I followed this road that hugged the side of the mountain passing in and out of a woodland of evergreens and deciduous trees. When the road came to an abrupt end, I made a rambling trail down the hillside toward home.

All around now the trees reminded intensely still.

Again and again I crossed the trails of "Peter Rabbit" and although I did not see him I'm sure he had just withdrawn to let me pass silently across his land.

"I feel the scrutiny of every eye
That peers from within the log and the limb so high.
And yet I dare to crunch my way
Step-by-step deeper into their hideaway."

Joy B. Burgess

Reaching home I was greeted by a large flock of goldfinches; their winter color fast changing. They will soon be like a burst of sunshine in contrast to their black markings.

"Chippy" with cheeks stuffed was hurrying from place to place.

The squirrels were eating as always.

As I removed my snow shoes I wondered if this would be my last trip for the year. I'll exchange the cold gray ice on the pond for a summer evening and the distant call of the robin, that sweet and powerful song.

Oh the evening robin at the end of Maine's snow and cold of winter!

IN MEMORIAM

I can not say, and I will not say
That he is dead. He is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since he lingers there.
And you—O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return —
Thinking of faring on, as dear
In the Love of there as the Love of here;
Think of him still as the same I say:
He is not dead—he is just away!

BAD SNOWMOBILE MISHAPS

The official tally of the Warden Service of the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Game and of the Maine State Police on all types of snowmobile accidents is a little behind the final figure of last year, but hospital records continue to show many, many bad mishaps. That is the report from Fish and Game Safety Coordinator John P. Marsh.

Skowhegan, which lists 306 registered machines, has treated at the Redington-Fairview Hospital 25 snowmobile mishaps; 31 outpatient and four inpatient care. The Aroostook County cities of Caribou and Presque Isle report a total of 31 and 52 snowmobile mishaps respectively being treated at their hospitals, Marsh said.

"Admittedly, the abundant snow cover has made for an extended snowmobile season; yet it seems astounding to have 219 accidents requiring hospital care reported in this random survey of only 11 hospital emergency wards, and the season isn't yet over," he said. With 43,000 machines registered, this random survey indicates a .5 per cent involvement. This figure will be a small part of the total that will be shown when the season ends and all hospitals are polled by Dr. Raymond Dorsinet, who is continuing his snowmobile accident survey even though he is on active duty with the United States Navy in Florida.

These mishaps aren't representative as to cause, type of injury, sex, age, or time. They involve drivers and passengers from eight to 60 and machines of horsepower and speeds of from five to 60 miles per hour.

Marsh said the records show that one Augusta man, through his own inattention, ran head-on into a parked machine, doing $400 damage to it and $200 damage to his snowmobile. During February this same man received a compound fracture of his left leg when he was involved in a head-on crash while trail riding. This second mishap was completely needless as he was backtracking on a trail, knowing full well there were other sleds coming in his direction.

During the one-week February school vacation, snowmobile accident problems became so acute in one small town in eastern Maine that the pastor of the local church digressed from his prepared sermon to urge his parishioners to exercise the utmost care in the operation of these snow machines, Marsh reported. His heartfelt concern apparently came to a head when a 16-year-old operator sleeved his 11-year old companion riding on a plastic sled towed behind the snowmobile into a disabled car parked on a public way. He is hospitalized with a broken pelvis and broken back.

"It seems that the only end to these needless mishaps will come with the warm spring rains and the melting of the winter snows. It is apparent this winter will long be remembered for its severity, not only of snow and cold but also in bloodshed and broken bones of snowmobilers.

"Let's hope next winter operators will not only be gifted with an abundance of snow but also an abundance of common sense as it is the lack of common sense, and not the snowmobile, that is at fault," Marsh concluded.

MAGALLOWAY

— Mrs. Bessie Harvey, Corres. —

Jesse Flint died Sunday at the home of a granddaughter in a town near Colebrook, and his body will be in Colebrook at the Bryant funeral parlor then taken to Milan to be buried in the cemetery beside his wife and infant son. The funeral will be there but the date has not been set as yet. He was the second son of George and Martha Bennett Flint and was born at their home near the Diamond river on the College Grant on Jan. 27, 1894.

I spent a week with my grandson and family at Northumberland. They came for me Sunday and brought me back the following Saturday. Mrs. Bertha West stayed here with Lady and the cats then went to Milan Saturday night to work in the restaurant Sunday. She has to work also on Wednesday, there.

Lee Sykes with a party of friends were at his cabin in Magalloway over the week end. He resides at Cape Elizabeth, Maine.

Gerhart Behrens of Watertown, Mass., was here over the week end. He stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Werner Littlehale as the snow is too deep to get in where his camp is.

Quite a large number of snowmobiles went up Diamond Saturday.

We have had nice sunny weather lately but Monday is cloudy and cold and looks like snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Turner are away on a two weeks vacation and plan to go to Mexico to visit his brother, Arlen, who lives there. Richard has finished logging and moved his equipment home.

WEIGHT WATCHERS TO MEET

A meeting of Weight Watchers will be held on Tuesday evening, April 6, at 7:30 at the Casco Community Room. All those interested are invited to attend.

REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

by William D. Hathaway
Congressman, 2nd Maine District

The quality of life is an overwhelming concern of Americans today, with the more visible signs of our deteriorating environment eliciting the greatest amount of public comment and criticism. Most of us, for example, are painfully aware of the smog hanging over our larger, more industrialized cities, and of the many polluted, sediment-filled lakes and rivers.

There is another type of pollution which, though less publicized and therefore less subject to criticism, is equally damaging. I'm speaking of course, of the everpresent noise which, again, in our larger cities and more industrialized areas, assails us 24 hours a day. This noise is more than a nuisance—it is a serious hazard to our physical and mental health.

This week in the Congress, in conjunction with several of my House colleagues, I introduced legislation, in the form of two separate bills, aimed at making what I believe can be a strong and effective assault on noise pollution.

The first of these measures is designed to fully fund the Federal Office of Noise Abatement and Control. This agency was created just last year by the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1970, but because the authorizing legislation was not signed into law until very late in the session, the 30 million recommended to finance the Office was never appropriated. And so the bill would permit this valuable new arm of the Federal Government to put its program into full gear.

The second proposal introduced this week aims at broadening the functions and responsibilities of the Noise Abatement and Control Office. Under present law, research into the problem of oppressive noise is authorized at the Federal level only. This presents a serious gap, since a great many smaller governmental units already have established, or could establish their own noise-control programs which could effectively use some of this Federal money.

The House bill would permit the Federal Office to distribute funds, in the form of grants, to States, counties, cities, and regional government bodies for localized programming. It would additionally authorize funding for research and demonstration projects run by public and non-profit agencies and institutions.

The measure would also permit the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, in which the Office is housed, to establish noise standards for any class of products which he finds to be hazardous to the public health and welfare, and would grant to the Office itself full responsibility for coordinating all Federal programs relating to noise and for preparing, publishing, and distributing relevant educational material.

The last Congress took an important step in the direction of total environmental protection when, with its creation of the Office of Noise Abatement and Control, it recognized the inherent human danger of uncontrolled, incurring noises. I'm hopeful that this Congress, by approving the legislative proposals introduced this week, can put the Office on its feet and give it the punch it will need to do its job and do it well.

FOOTNOTE: The House Public Works Committee this week approved the 10 billion Accelerated Public Works bill I co-sponsored at the beginning of the year, clearing it for possible floor action in the House before the Easter recess. The bill designed to alleviate unemployment through Federal funding of public works projects, such as water treatment plants and sewer facilities, in areas of high unemployment. Urban and rural areas alike will feel the positive effects of this legislation, with a large number of them areas coming from Maine.

YOUTHTIME DIRECTOR TO BE SPEAKER AT SOUTH PARIS BAPTIST CHURCH NEXT WEEK

Rev. John DeBrine

Three of the most serious problems confronting the church and the home—separation and divorce, personality conflicts, and the generation gap—will be discussed by the Rev. John DeBrine, director of Boston Youthtime, in a series of teen and family conferences illustrated with film at the South Paris Baptist Church, 1 Park Street, South Paris. It has been announced by the pastor, the Rev. Edwin M. Jacques.

The meetings are scheduled for Sunday, April 4, at 10:45 a. m. and 7 p. m., and will continue nightly at 7 p. m. through Wednesday, April 7. The Sunday morning service is broadcast over WKTQ at 11 a. m., and a fellowship hour will follow the Sunday night service.

The South Paris Baptist choir and soloists will present special music.

Fifty churches in the area have been invited to send delegations and participate in the question and answer periods. The public is welcome.

The Rev. Mr. DeBrine speaks at his Saturday night Youthtime rallies, which attract nearly 2,000 teens, as "a kind of Johnny Carson variety show" in which celebrities appear and young people entertain, exchange ideas and come away with a better understanding of their world.

Mr. DeBrine is also host of "Song time," award winning radio program heard weekly coast-to-coast and daily in New England.

NEW BOOKS AT THE BETHEL LIBRARY

"Second Chance," by Louis Auchincloss. This new volume of short stories by this author has perhaps a richer variety of character and setting than any of his previous books.

"Them," by Joyce Carol Oates. Through a complex field of time and space—Detroit and its environs between 1937 and 1967— the three Wendalls experience their everydays in the midst of ominous history trying by almost any means to cope with the "thems" they cannot understand, each seeking desperately to placate a driving restlessness with a freedom of abandon, to find his own identity, to define his unique, invulnerable self. From the Depression of the thirties to the violence of the sixties, Miss Oates penetrates the point of view of each character to show the impact of events upon him, the subtle relationships of each to the other, the innermost feelings and emotions that spur each to his own dream and action.

"The Center of Action," by Jerome Weidman, who explores the current American passion for business merger by examining, in hilarious and often terrifying details, the takeover of an old-style publishing house by a new-style (financial) wizard.

"The Friendly Air," by Elizabeth Cadell. Young, beautiful Emma Challis should have been happy about her engagement to Gerald Delmont. After all, wasn't he a brilliant and sophisticated young man and wasn't his legal career one of the most promising in all of London? Everyone seemed to agree that Gerald was the perfect husband for Emma—everyone but Lady Grantly. When Lady Grantly picks the coast of Portugal as her new home, Emma accompanies her there.

"Fourth Street East," by Jerome Weidman. In his wonderful new novel, Jerome Weidman returns to the scene of many of his earlier books—New York's lower East Side, to tell the story of growing up in an era when people still came from the Old World to the New World and found that everything was better, even being poor. For Benny Kramer, it was that most special and exciting time through which we all pass—the time of youth.

"Island Ghost," by Janet Randell. Solving the mystery of the ghost makes a very exciting story.

"Pippi Longstocking," by Astrid Lindgren. Pippi has the good luck to live with her horse and her monkey in a rackety-packety house on the edge of a little town in Sweden, next door to two very nice average children, a boy and a girl, whose life is never the same after Pippi appears.

(from the Portland Press Herald, Tuesday, March 23, 1971)

A breakdown in longtime negotiations between teachers and directors of School Administrative District 44 that resulted in a call for a fact-finding board to assess contract differences brought sharp opposition from the district's superintendent Monday.

Supt. Robert J. Gerardi said "I had hoped the teachers would have waited until after we held a special board meeting scheduled for Monday.

"We had asked them to wait, since our board has not seen the specific requests of the teachers except for intermittent reports given them by their chief negotiator, Eddie Snyder.

Lawrence Arsenault, chief negotiator for the teachers, indicated they would have preferred mutual fact-finding, but added that further foot-dragging by the board might have extended the contract hassle into the middle of the summer.

So the teachers decided to declare an impasse and go ahead with their plans after the most recent bargaining talk, a seven hour session, got nowhere.

"Under the state law governing collective bargaining between public employes and their employers," Arsenault said, "we would have had to wait 35 days before mutual fact-finding could even begin.

"In addition the law also requires a 40-45 day cooling-off period after the fact-finding has been completed before either side can take any action on those findings."

Arsenault reported that the teachers' decision to go ahead with unilateral fact-finding was made in the hope that it might bring the contract dispute to a speedier resolution.

Of the 33 articles in the contract package on the bargaining table, 19 remain unsettled. They include items governing personal and academic freedom, the length of the school year, methods of class control and discipline, and the protection of students, teachers and property.

Base salaries and stipends for extra duties also are undecided, but the teachers maintain that money is not a major issue.

Richard Mersereau, an MTA lobbyist from Augusta who has been involved in the negotiations for two months, told the group, "Money is not the real issue here. Rather, the basic hangup involves issues such as class size and discipline areas in which the school board has traditionally reserved the right to set absolute policy."

"The non-money issues are really what a contract is all about," Mersereau added. "It's time for teachers to begin to have a larger say in how they are going to teach."

"In my opinion, " Supt. Gerardi said, "any teachers' association which wants to negotiate, and expects to have a paragraph in the final document for every paragraph submitted is not negotiating in good faith. And I believe that our association's intent was to have a paragraph in the final contract matching every paragraph in their original proposal."

"Those are unrealistic demands, since negotiation does not mean capitulation by the other side—you have to discuss the things, accept some, throw some out and modify others."

Gerardi tended to disagree with the teachers' assertion that money matters are playing a relatively minor role in the contract dispute, adding his opinion that salaries and stipends carry as much weight as any of the other unsettled contract items.

"If salaries are not a major issue," the superintendent added, "then the teachers would have been more amenable to the offers put forth by the board."

Considering the possibility that an arbitration board might award the teachers a salary package exceeding the funds already allocated by the board of directors, Gerardi noted, "In that case, even if they win they lose."

He explained that if such a situation were to develop, the only realistic alternative available to the directors to meet those salaries would be to reduce the size of the staff, thereby necessitating an increase in class size.

"DID YOU KNOW?"

That a shoemaker by the name of Thomas, came over on the Mayflower, and provided the Pilgrims with shoes?

That the Eiffel Tower (1887-1889), contains 7,000 tons of ironwork, and required a force of only 250 workmen to assemble?

That a group of surveyors led by Charles Turner were said to be the first to climb Mt. Katahdin, in 1804?

That no fish can live in the Great Salt Lake in Utah, because the lake brine is so concentrated?

Mrs. Imogene Kimball has been discharged from a nursing home in Lewiston. She will be celebrating her birthday, April 5, at her home in Sabattus. Her address is Box 95, Sabattus, Maine.

Miss Carol Beth Stebbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stebbins, formerly of Bethel, a student at Wheaton North High School, Wheaton Ill., was the winner in the 24th annual VFW Voice of Democracy National Scriptwriting Scholarship Program at the school. Miss Stebbins, a high honor roll student, has been granted permission to begin her college courses at Wheaton College when the spring quarter begins. She plans a pre-med course.

Mrs. George Stebbins of Wheaton, Ill., formerly of Bethel, writes that they received a surprise phone call from Becky Kenison who lives in Chicago. Mrs. Stebbins also appreciated a phone call received from Mrs. George Eppler of Bethel, who informed them of the heavy snowfall in Bethel this winter and helped make necessary arrangements for a shovel job on the Stebbins' Albany road. Mrs. Stebbins has accepted a fifth grade teaching position at a Wheaton elementary school starting April 19.

Robert Collord of Waterville spent the week end in Bethel with his mother, Mrs. Romaine Bouchard, and step-father, Maurice Bouchard. He is now employed at the Fenway Motel, Waterville. When he returned to Waterville on Monday he was accompanied by his mother. On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Bouchard was admitted to Seton Hospital for tests and treatment of a lingering condition—due to the fact that there were no doctors available in Bethel for several weeks. At the present time it is not known how long she will be confined at the hospital.

On the 1st of April, Mercury sets at twilight's end in the west. On the 10th of April it becomes difficult to see because of inferior conjunction with the sun.

Venus rises in the east on the 1st about 1½ hours before sun rise. About mid month it is 4/5 illuminated.

Mars rises in the southeast about 1:00 a. m. local time and is nearing the meridian about sun rise. It will appear 9" in diameter.

Jupiter rises about 11:00 p. m. on the first of April and about two hours later on the 30th. At midmonth it shows a flattened disk 43" by 40" crossed by dark belts.

Saturn sets about three hours after the sun on the 1st of April but by mid month is lost in the solar glare. Seen through a low powered telescope, Saturn appears as an elongated object 33" by 15" in the western sky. This is a very fascinating objejct to see. - Your Sky Reporter, Harold Smith.

TELSTAR R. H. S. NEWS

TWO IMPRESSIONS OF THE DAVE ASTOR SHOW

As you all know, Telstar bussed about 50 students down to Portland to appear on the Dave Astor Show. The band of students arrived there about 3 o'clock.

I'm not going into the details of what took place once we got there, but rather give my impressions of what happened.

I have to give Mr. Astor credit for doing the show as well as he does, because he really doesn't have the time in which to really make sure that every thing is done right. We had about three hours in which to get ready for the show.

Speaking for myself, I really can't get too excited about the show itself, although I think that most of the students enjoyed themselves.

The show has its pros and cons which is true with anything, but the only thing that I see which is good about the program is that it lets other people in the state know what is going on in other schools and acts as a sort of public relation device for the school.

The three hours before the show to me were the best of the whole trip, because I found myself thinking about a lot of things which I never really paid much attention to before. I can sum them up in just a few words. It was mass confusion, hurrying to get organized, talking, and in some aspects just boring at times. — Paula Wight.

After boarding the elevator and traveling to the sixth floor I doubt that there was one of the 50 Telstar students who was not surprised to find out how small that the Dave Astor studio actually was, especially after we had all squeezed into it.

Mr. Astor himself proved to be a master at piecing a television show together in three short hours. Besides memorizing names and facts about the students, he had many behaving like professional entertainers by showtime.

The show itself turned out remarkably considering the amount of preparation for it.

All too soon we were aboard the buses bound for Bethel, left only with a memory of an exciting and enjoyable afternoon.

I am glad that we had the chance to appear on the Dave Astor Show in its final year of existence. — Dave Holt.

ACTIVITIES

The Conqueror or the Conquered

Disappointment subdues the small man, but to the man of courage it acts as a spur. A man who has very little hope, too many disappointments behind him, and not too bright a future in sight may be completely towed under when one more little thing goes against the grain. He becomes weak. He builds an almost unconquerable wall of unhappiness about him, bitterness for the world, and most of all bitterness in himself. He begins to feel very sorry for himself, he feels that the world has done him some unforgiveable wrong.

You take and take, but never give. An unlucky man doesn't take or give a lot; he just barely survives. He thinks the world owes him something. He pities himself and tries to drag all generous people into his own private world of sorrow. A man who has courage is a man to be admired and respected. He has many of the same problems a small man has, but there is one major difference. A courageous man does not let his problems get him down as a small man does. One more disappointment is a challenge to a man filled with hope and purpose.

Life is a raging river to swim across and then look back over conquered obstacles with triumphant glory. It is a torrid desert to crawl across resulting in cracked hands and swelled tongue, but the reward is to gaze back on your struggles with a cupful of cool, sweet water in hand.

The man of courage has troubles, but he doesn't let them handicap him. Instead, he handicaps his problems. He works them with his hands and throws them on a potter's wheel. He molds them and shapes them into hope, trust and faith.

The man of courage molds his future and doesn't let his future mold him. He doesn't look behind until he has reached his goal. He strives forever forward. He doesn't think about how things could be, he thinks about how he is going to make things better. He takes now bad things and shapes them into better future things.

A man with courage is a proud creature. He doesn't look behind and weep for what is lost. He looks ahead and hopes the unseen can be made better.

To a hopeful man, another disappointment is a sign telling him to try harder. It is a little voice saying, "Think more positively" See what you can do for yourself, your neighbor, your country and your world.

WHO IS THE PERFECT FOOL?

Although they say no one is perfect, we feel that at the first of April, our definition of a "perfect fool" is appropriate.

He is someone who does not believe in going to a doctor or dentist for a periodic check-up. Moreover he will always try to cure his own illness and yours too if you will listen to him. His medicine cabinet is filled with half-empty unlabeled bottles. He usually is the first one to try that new "gadget" or "elixir," and is an expert on all current health fads from dieting to exotic seeds. He is a menace to himself and to others, and to others.

Due to the increased number of prescriptions and in order to keep up good service, it would be to our mutual advantage, if you would please phone in refill prescriptions. — Thank you.
